

Major Toner Spill – Dell C3760dn Printer – All LD Toner

Three color cartridges low (Cyan was empty). Pulled out the Yellow (top slot, empty now) and ... spill. Now I know why I was saving that 30-year-old Panasonic vac in the basement! This pic is after I cleaned up the cascade at the top.

The cartridge (upside down in its bag here) had no cover over the “output” port. It decided to be empty after all!

I did not find the cover inside the printer – maybe it got lost when I changed the drums – (and bought this toner) 2½ years ago.

The Cyan and Magenta cartridges had covers over that port. I was changing all the cartridges at the same time for convenience. I use little color, so they may last me four or five years. LD toner is not publication quality, but it’s more than right for the price.
